Two Killed And Six Hurt In Bay St. Louis Week-End Automobile Accidents

Fire Roars Through Lakeshore Destroying Home

A roaring forest fire Saturday destroyed one home, thousands of young pine trees and endangered the lives and homes of several Lakeshore families.

The home of Mrs. Rae Carco who was in Gulfport at the time, was almost completely destroyed. All the furnishings with the exception of a refrigerator, which volunteer fire fighters were able to remove were destroyed.

Sundown farm, home of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Sully of New Orleans and Lakeshore about 5 miles from the Carco home was saved but some farm machinery was lost.

Whipping from Ansley to upper Lakeshore the fire came so close to "Myrtle Grove Farm" owned by Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm B. Green that Mrs. Green was getting ready to evacuate her husband, who is a bed patient with rheumatic heart disease. But the wind shifted and carried the fire on up to "The Hill."

Only the hard work of volunteers led by Milton Stoutflet saved the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Borge, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ladner, Mrs. Lily Sellers and Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester LaFontaine.

JULY IN FEBRUARY—Warm enough for the beach? It was this week for these Bay St. Louis visitors, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Kenyon of St. Louis, Mo., shown sunning themselves at the Hotel Reed.

Automobile wrecks in and near Bay St. Louis since Sunday have taken at all of two lives and caused serious injuries to six persons.

On Tuesday night a head-on collision involving two cars and a truck about nine miles west of the city caused the death of Grego Antich of Biloxi. George Puchio of Corpus Christi, Tex., was hospitalized with a broken back, leg and hip and internal injuries.

Joe Toche of Biloxi was also involved in this wreck, which came when one of the vehicles attempted to pass and met one of the oncoming cars.

Early Sunday morning a one-car accident resulting in the death of Raymond E. Dawson of Keeler Field, occurred about seven miles out of town on the highway.

The driver of this car, Clarence Cotter of Keeler Field, went to sleep at the wheel, according to the Highway patrol report. The car overturned twice as he attempted to bring it sharply back into the road.

Dawson died of a punctured lung and other injuries. William Carter, another passenger, has hospitalized with a broken leg and lacerations.

Sunday afternoon Warrant Officer Norman Glass of Keeler Field and his wife, Frances, daughter of Mrs. Carmelita Saucier, were seriously hurt, as was their 18 month old baby.

The couple's car, according to the patrol report, was struck from the side by a car driven by Chester Schultz.

Schultz, the report said, drove through a stop sign.

Two other children riding in the car were injured.

The Glasses were taken to Keeler Field hospital.

Two other accidents resulted in car damage but no injuries to passengers. One of these was a Christian, involved several New Orleans travelers. The other occurred on Necaise Avenue. Frank Trapani and a Keeler Field couple were in this accident.

More College Degrees For Teachers Planned

The Hancock County Teachers Association, meeting on February 8, at Bay High School, was presented with an explanation of the new laws governing teacher training and certification in this state.

James A. Colman, director of teacher certification, stated that the new system will completely revolutionize the teaching system and will eliminate many evils. Money has not yet been supplied by the legislature now in session to put the system into effect.

One of the major points brought out in the meeting was the fact that certificates to teach will, after December 1, 1954, be given only to qualified persons having two years of college education. At present only six semester hours of college work is necessary to obtain a certificate to teach.

The requirements do not apply to those already in the teaching profession as long as the present certificates are kept alive in the manner prescribed by law. New teachers entering the profession are affected by the new ruling, Colman said.

After December 1, 1957, new teachers entering the field will be required to have four years of college work in order to obtain the certificate to teach.

All permanent professional teaching certificates are valid and not affected by this program, Colman stated.

He explained further that before 1939, three types of life time certificates were issued. These were: Reciprocal—which honored lifetime certificates of other states. Exemption—which exempted the teacher from taking further courses.

Professional—which required a bachelor of arts degree, including 18 semester hours in professional education.

The only one of these which will still be valid under the new laws is the "professional" rating. The other two will be honored but will not entitle teachers to an "A" certificate.

It was announced at the meeting by Jackson Smith of Pineville school that an extension course in STATISTICS, number 612, will be conducted at the Long Beach School beginning Wednesday, Feb. 10 and continuing for six weeks.

S. J. Ingram spoke briefly on Mardi Gras plans and asked all of the schools to participate.

Litterbug Work Encouraging

A survey conducted in Bay St. Louis and Waveland by the co-chairmen of the Garden Club Litterbug campaign showed that the two towns are in generally good condition from the standpoint of cleanliness it was announced this week.

Some glaringly bad rubbish areas were pointed out by Mrs. J. William Hill and Mrs. Max Kohler, who made the survey, but willingness to cooperate in a clean-up has been indicated, they said.

On St. John Street, they reported, it was found that a garden overflowing with narcissus was marred by a refuse heap across the street. A pile of discarded roofing paper and various other rubbish was being used for a filler on Second Street, the ladies said. The latter was being burned during the weekend, however.

The sister Superior of St. Rose de Lima School reported during a visit made by Mrs. Hill that the school children were eager to help in the campaign, but it was requested that adults using the cemetery opposite the school be more careful of disposing of paper and other refuse when visiting the cemetery.

Other littered spots pointed out by citizens were several stagnant and odorous ditches, a pile of dried cement sacks on the beach front and several places where open containers were being used for garbage.

FORMER LEADING LADY—The above picture taken from a yellowing newspaper clipping of 1901 shows Mrs. R. L. Wyman, who then was known by her stage name, Fay Ellis. Mrs. Wyman was the leading lady for the Casino Stock Company in their numerous plays. She and her husband now are retired in Bay St. Louis.

WYMAN'S WERE STAGE ACTORS;
WEDDING THEIR BIG SCENE

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Wyman, residents of State Street in Bay St. Louis, were show people during the golden era of the stage, before motion pictures came into existence.

Mr. Wyman, originally of New Orleans, was in his younger years a professional baseball player in the Southern League, a professional boxer, a boxing promoter and the owner of a road show company.

He played with the Mobile and Chattanooga baseball teams and participated in 19 professional bouts, winning 17. His touring theater, for which he bought the rights to the stage play, "Fortunes of a Waif" was known throughout the country as the Lewis, Jarred and Lawrence Road Company.

Mr. Wyman's stage name was Roger Lewis.

While in the show business Mr. Wyman met a young actress named Fay Ellis, who is now Mrs. Wyman. Miss Ellis was then leading lady in numerous plays for the Casino stock company.

On November 23, 1897, after a cross-country journey by Miss Ellis, which would befit a movie plot, they were married in Franklin, La.

After their marriage Mrs. Wyman joined her husband's show as the leading lady. Three years following their elopement Mr. Wyman decided to discontinue his company and went to work for a railroad. His wife continued on the stage until her health no longer would allow her. She closed in Kansas City as the star of "The Fatal Wedding."

Having only one daughter, who is now Mrs. A. J. Cloven of San Diego, Calif., Mr. and Mrs. Wyman raised 17 orphaned children. These all feel a deep appreciation and love for their foster parents. And during the year they visit them here.

Recently Mrs. Wyman donated to the library a book of 100 poems written by her mother, Mrs. Ann Cotton. Mrs. Cotton was the daughter of Dr. Granville Cook who was the first mayor of Brookhaven, Miss.

While reminiscing over the past years Mr. and Mrs. Wyman said, "We can still recite from memory the exact words of the play 'Fortunes of a Waif,' which ran from 1897 to 1899."

Mrs. Wyman's most vivid recollection is the trip she made to meet her husband when they were going to be married. She said "First Mr. Wyman hired an old man to act as my guardian during the trip to Franklin. We began by crossing the Mississippi river in a canoe, an experience that I would not duplicate for any amount of money, but when you are young and in love danger means nothing to you."

"From there we were supposed to meet a buggy which would carry us to the railroad station, where we could catch a train for Franklin."

But through some mishap the buggy was not here so we had to catch a ride on a wagon. We got off in some small town in Louisiana, not knowing which way to go, we asked the driver for directions. During our conversation he told us that we could not pass the military guards at the train station in the next town without a health certificate because of the yellow fever epidemic.

"Not having the proper certificates we went to meet the train at a small town where guards were not posted. To go to this town we had to walk through a field of sugar cane."

"When we got there we boarded the train and went to a town right outside of Franklin, where I walked boldly past the guards unnoticed in the crowd."

"I sent a telegram to Mr. Wyman saying that I would meet him in Franklin the next day. At 5 o'clock the next day we were married in the local hotel."

"The younger people of the town must have heard that two stage performers were being married and quite a crowd assembled for the ceremony."

SEMINARY GARDENS

Gex Home Is Readied For Tour

The Walter J. Gex home and gardens, one of the few English type structures on the coast, was being readied this week as one of the group participating in the garden club pilgrimage to be held March 17.

This home, one of the eight stops for the expected several hundred visitors, will close the tour. Tea will be served from the terrace in the late afternoon, it was announced by Mrs. C. R. Beyer, president of the Bay-Waveland Garden Club.

This is the second time the prominent Bay St. Louis mansion has been included in the garden club project.

"We are so happy to participate and show out of town visitors the beauties of our Gulf Coast," Mrs. Gex said this week. She added that in the event of rain, the swimming house, with its breezeway overlooking the swimming pool will be used for tea.

The Gex home is framed with the branches of moss-covered live oaks. The large lawn is bordered with pittas parum, hibiscus and crepe myrtle. These are planted to enhance the sweeping effect of the lawn down to the gulf.

Beyond the house, a flagstone walk leads to the pool and swimming house from which tennis courts surrounded by large banana trees can be seen.

The area back of the tennis courts is one of woodland beauty. A winding road leads to views of wild azaleas, dogwood, wisteria, oleander, a variety of hollies and stately southern pines.

Earlier in the afternoon, St. Augustine's Seminary, located on highway 90 about three blocks from the bridge on the Bay St. Louis side, will be part of the tour.

Southern plants grow in profusion at the school. The specialty of the Seminary gardens is the growing of camellias. There are about 300 varieties of the flower grown there.

About 30 species of bamboo can be seen at the seminary and about 10 species of palm trees.

This noted area, with its grottoes and artistic pools, also have available for visitors' inspection azaleas, sweet olive, dogwood, spirea, magnolia, hydrangea, crepe myrtle, oleander, hibiscus and allamanda trees and plants.

The seminary choir will sing during the part of the afternoon when the garden tour takes place there.
